Dear Mr. Chairman:

This is in response to your request for the views of this Agency on S. 619, the "Federal Reports Authorship Disclosure Act of 1977." This bill would require that any document, film or recording distributed by any agency which contains information derived from reports submitted to the agency pursuant to a contract, identify the source of the information, the details of the contract, and the employees of the agency who awarded the contract.

We believe that S. 619 is unnecessary since all or most of this information can be obtained under the Freedom of Information Act. Moreover, although the bill does not require the disclosure of classified information, the bill could conflict with the authority of the Director of Central Intelligence to protect intelligence sources and methods (section 102(d)(3) of the National Security Act of 1947, as amended). For example, there might be instances in which S. 619 could be construed to require that information constituting or identifying an intelligence source or method, and which therefore should not be made public, must be included in a document or report that is not itself classified. Even though access to information classified pursuant to Executive Order No. 11652 is restricted on a "need to know" basis, access to information relating to intelligence sources and methods is determined by separate criteria pursuant to the Director's statutory authority, and may therefore be more restrictive. Thus, inclusion in a classified document or report of information covered by S. 619, which may constitute an intelligence source or method, could result in the disclosure of such information to persons not authorized to receive it, notwithstanding that the individuals properly require access to the classified material. For the reasons given above, we recommend against enactment of S. 619.

The Office of Management and Budget has advised there is no objection to the submission of this report from the standpoint of the Administration's program.

Sincerely,

/s/John F. Blake
